

The Daily Courant.

Monday, July 7. 1707.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated July 8.

Genoa, June 19.

THE English and Dutch Fleet is on this Coast, from Oneglia to Leghorne, in Number 48 Men of War, and about 60 Transport-Ships, on which Artillery, Ammunition, and Provisions are embarking. 'Tis talk'd 7000 Foot and 700 Horse, will also be embark'd, to be landed on the Coast of Provence.

Milan, June 21. General Zumjungen is detach'd with 4 Imperial Regiments of Foot, of the best of the Army, to Genoa or Final, to embark on Ships appointed to receive and carry him with his Detachment to the Coast of Provence. Prince Eugene is to command in chief the Body that is to act against that Province; and at the same Time the Duke of Savoy at the Head of another Body will march towards Suza. Part of the Regiment and other Troops of Count Bonafana, will be embark'd likewise on the Fleet; but 'tis thought they will be transported to Catalonia. A great Number of Cannon and Mortars are sent from Pavia to Piemont. 'Tis advis'd from Final, that Admiral Shovel is come there, to see the Troops embark'd.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated July 7.

Turin, June 18. The greatest Part of the Troops of the Allies is at Orbassan, some are advanc'd before to Buscha and others nearer to the Enemy's Frontier. At least 20000 Peasants prepare to join our Army as soon as they have broke into France: In the mean time the French in Dauphine and Provence cut down all the green, and burn all the dry Forrage. They write from Alexandria, that the 60 Waggon Loads of Bullets for 36 Pounds, &c. which were some Days ago sent thither from hence, have been sent from thence to Final, to be embark'd on the Confederate Fleet, which has on board a Train of Artillery and Mortars proper for a Descent. Yesterday came Advice, that the Enemy having plunder'd the Town of Suza, and broken down the Bridge over the Dorea, have retir'd into the Castle carrying in with them all the Stores of Provisions; that they have also abandon'd all the Forts they had built about that Place; and that the Troops they had thereabouts are encamp'd under the Cannon of Fort Murin which commands a Passage into Dauphine.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated July 12.

Turin, June 22. All the Troops that were expected, being arriv'd in Piemont, the Army will be moving without Delay; and our Duke and Prince Eugene are preparing to leave this City. Sir John Norris set out from hence the 18th to return to the Fleet: M. Vander Meer Envoy Extraordinary of Holland, is preparing to go to the Fleet likewise.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated July 12.

Zurich, June 29. Our freshest Advices from Milan of the 25th Instant, say some of the English and Dutch Ships of War were to take in Provisions, Ammunition, and some Troops that were making hard Marches to Final, and to transport them to Provence with the utmost Speed, while Prince Eugene makes his Way by Land with 25000 Men to attack Toulon and Marseilles. That at the same Time the Duke of Savoy will attempt something very considerable on the side of Dauphine; that both those Princes would move with their Armies yesterday the 28th Instant; and that a considerable Train of Artillery is brought from Pavia to Piemont. Letters out of Savoy, dated Yesterday, say the French are extremely perplex'd at these Designs of the Allies, and oblig'd to change suddenly their Dispositions. The French General Medavi, is at St. Maurice with 6 or 7000 Men.

Toulon, June 24. It being very much apprehended the Enemy will make a Descent upon this Province, all the Country-militia are rais'd and drawing down to the Coast. We have here a Garrison of 3000 Men, and above 200 Cannon are plac'd on our 2 Moles and other Works as well towards the Land as towards the sea. All our Men of War lye behind the Royal Fort, where they will be most secure; 4 flat bottom Vessels having each 3 Batteries of 25 Guns lye before our Harbour with 12 Fire-ships and 10 Bomb Vessels. All the Gallies are expected from Marseilles, to cruise along the Coast. Our Inhabitants are order'd to provide themselves with Provisions for 6 Months.

Suza, June 26. Within a few Days a great Quantity of Provisions and Powder has been remov'd out of this Town into our Castle. 2 Battallions of our Garrison are sent to Pignerol. All possible Dispositions are made here for a vigorous Defence. Deserters from the Enemy and Spies report, that the Duke of Savoy and Prince Eugene will begin to move with their Forces to Morrow or next Day. Yesterday Noon the Marshal de Tessé came hither, and having view'd our Fortifications set out for Briançon. To Day a Detachment was sent from hence to the Valley of Barcelonetta, and also 6000 Pioneers to Perouse to strengthen that Post. P. S. 5000 Foot and 1500 Dragoons are detach'd in all Haste to Provence.

From the Camp at Meldert, July 11. Our Army continues still in the same Camp, where we are so plentifully supplied with all sorts of Provisions for our Men, and Forrage for our Horses, that there is no manner of appearance of our being oblig'd to decamp sooner than may be judg'd necessary for the Service. The Enemy do not discover any Inclination to remove from their Camp at Gemblours, having detach'd only 3 Battallions and 5 Squadrons towards Germany. Brigadier Macartney who was taken Prisoner at the Battle of Almanza, having obtain'd leave to go to England on his Parole, came hither on Friday last to wait on the Duke of Marlborough.

Hague, July 5. King Augustus's Minister having desir'd a Conference with the States, they appointed Deputies for that purpose, to whom he declar'd, that the King his Master had absolutely promis'd the King of Sweden not to use for the future the Title and Arms of Poland: And that nothing might be left unexecuted of the Treaty of Alt-Ranstad on King Augustus's Part, the said Minister earnestly solicited the Guarantie of the States to that Treaty. So that now the Pretences for the King of Sweden's Stay in Saxony till King Augustus had intirely fulfill'd the said Treaty, are all remov'd. The Pope has sent the Bishop of Paderborn a Bull constituting him Bishop of Munster. The Elector of Hanover being dispos'd to take on him the Command of the Army of the Empire, provided it be supplied with all that is requisite, has has sent 2 Officers to see what Condition that Army is in, and what Necessaries it wants.

Hague, July 8. Yesterday Morning 4 Frenchmen were seized here, of which 2 were Prisoners taken at the Battle of Ramilly, one of these a Major nam'd Gautier. The States had secret Information given them 8 Days ago, that some villainous Enterprize, either to kill or carry off some Person, was in Hand; and it was apprehended that Enterprize might be form'd against the Pensioner (or chief Minister of this State.) But it seems one of the Conspirators discover'd to Monsieur Huguetan, a Merchant, who first advis'd their High Mightinesses to prohibit the negotiating of the Mintbills of France in the Netherlands, that the Design was to surprize and seize his Person, and carry him into France; that in order to it Houses were laid at convenient Distances on the Road to Aix la Chappelle, under Pretence of carrying home a German Prince who was run mad, and that they had corrupted one of M. Huguetan's Servants to assist them in their Design. He could not at first believe it, but being fully convinc'd by some Circumstances alledg'd by the Discoverer, he communicated the Matter to the Council of State of the Province of Holland, who have caus'd some of the Criminals to be seiz'd with as little Noise as might be; and Order is dispatch'd to certain Towns and to the Frontiers, for apprehending the rest. Two Merchants of France who came hither to do some Business with M. Huguetan, and who 'tis suppos'd were the Springs that put this Project in Motion, went away about 6 Days ago, and waited for the Success of it at Namur, whither it was design'd to carry the Victim. One of the Prisoners has confess'd, that the Court of France had promis'd them 30000 Pistoles. M. Huguetan's Servant is seiz'd at Utrecht, and will be brought hither. 'Tis expected these execrable Villains will be punish'd exemplarily. To Day the States of Holland confer'd the Office of Dykegrave of the Rhine, (which the City of Lieden solicited they might have the Disposal of,) on M. Nortwick, who is of the College of Nobles of their Province: So M. Obdam will keep his military Employments, and some other Person will have the Presidentship of the Council of State of the said Province.

Hague, July 12. Messengers are gone to Breda, Liege, and Antwerp, to endeavour to take the rest of the Conspirators against M. Huguetan. His Servant is not yet brought hither from Utrecht, because of some Error in Form in the requisitory Letter which the Council of State of Holland have sent to that of Utrecht. Gautier has made a full Confession; and among other things, that a new Bayonet which was found in his Lodging, was bought on Purpose, to make M. Huguetan forbear crying out, or else to stab him. 2000 Gelders are promis'd by the States for apprehending one of his Accomplices, who 'tis thought lyes conceal'd in this Province. The freshest Letters from France, say that Court continue in Apprehension of the Attempts of the Allies on the Coast of Provence. And that they have dispatch'd repeated Order to the Duke de Noailles, to send a Detachment of his Troops to help to make up 20 Battalions that are to be commanded by Lieutenant General de Bezons in Provence or in Languedoc. Letters from Germany, say the Imperial Army under the Margrave of Bareith, are come back to the Rhine, having pass'd the Neckar near Heilbronn; and having been joyn'd by General Thungen near Philipsbourg, encamp'd the 5th of July between Rheinhausen and Loshheim. The French Army under the Marshal de Villars is likewise come back to the Rhine, and is encamp'd near Bruchsal. It was by General Heister's Advice that the Imperial Army made this march to the Rhine, which oblig'd the Enemy to march back thitherlikewise.
